

A typical Grade A computer

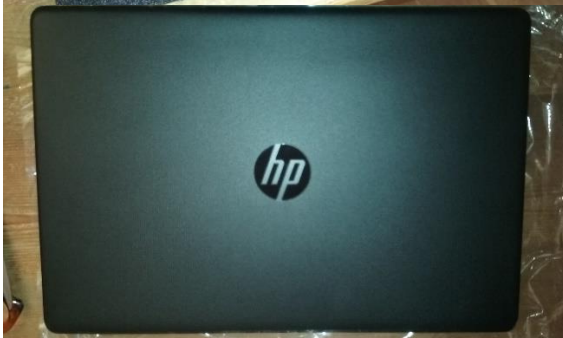

Arrives securely packed – signature required

This one is in the original HP box but no documents though. There is a receipt of course.

Well protected as always

No visible signs of any use at all. This is often the case with 'grade A' equipment.

Even no signs of use on the bottom. Which is where you would expect to see signs of use if any.

As new in every detail.

When first switched on the computer starts with the initial Windows set up screen demonstrating a new never before used installation.
